

Supplier Background Check Checklist Before Placing an Order

Written by SourcingX Supplier Intelligence Team - Last reviewed July 2026

Before placing an order, verify the legal seller, company status, supplier type, production site, product capability, compliance evidence, export experience, payment beneficiary, and order controls. Mark each item as Verified, Unresolved, Escalated, or Not applicable. Do not approve payment while a critical identity, product-safety, document-integrity, or beneficiary issue remains unresolved.

Decision labels

Verified	The item is supported by traceable evidence and no material inconsistency remains.
Unresolved	Information is missing, inconsistent, outdated, or not independently checked.
Escalated	The issue requires an audit, laboratory, issuer, legal adviser, financial control, or senior approval.
N/A	The item does not apply to this product, market, supplier model, or transaction.

Common unresolved issues in SourcingX reviews

These issues are not proof that a supplier is fraudulent or unsuitable. They indicate that the available evidence is not yet sufficient for a decision.

- The English company name cannot be matched confidently to a Chinese legal entity. Ask for the business license and Unified Social Credit Code before relying on company-status or risk data.
- Addresses do not match. A registered office, warehouse, factory, and recently moved site may legitimately differ, but the supplier should explain which entity operates each location.
- No matching export record is found, or records appear under another company. Dataset coverage, export agents, intermediary traders, and name changes can explain the gap; map the exporter and request supporting shipment documents.
- The target market is not defined. Product-compliance requirements cannot be scoped reliably until the destination country, user group, sales channel, and claims are known.
- The final product specification is incomplete. Capability, testing, quality control, and compliance cannot be evaluated against an undefined product.

Stop Before Payment

Do not release funds if any of the following are true:

- The legal seller or bank beneficiary cannot be verified.
- The supplier cannot explain the relationship between the seller and the factory.
- A safety- or compliance-critical document does not match the product or cannot be traced.
- The factory or production process required for the product cannot be demonstrated.
- The supplier pressures the buyer to bypass verification, testing, inspection, or written terms.
